

Palais Royal Friday.

IT IS NOT REMNANT DAY.

87c Tomorrow for All $1 Waists.

Friday Bargains that come from the Palais Royal bring lasting satisfaction. For tomorrow the entire stock of new $1 Waists are to be 87c for choice. One of the twenty different styles is pictured here. In the collection is everything from plain tailor-made to fancifully lace and embroidered trimmed. All sizes in all styles. Better than usual New $1 Waists, of Persian Lawn, English Madras and India Linon. 87c for tomorrow only.

$2.60 for $2.98 China Silk Waists.

The new Black and White Silk Waists, tailor-made English style and lace-trimmed French style. All sizes in each style.

Tomorrow, $15 $5.39 $1.98 98c
And only tomorrow. $17 Suits. $6 Garments. $2.50 Hats. $1.50 Skirts.

The Suits at $15 instead of $17 are the spring style Panama, Broadcloth and Fancy Mixture Suits, with Eton, blouse and tailor-made jackets, pleated skirts, black and colors, in all sizes. A Friday bargain saving you two dollars. The $6 garments at $5.39 are the new gored, pleated and kilt effect Skirts of Panama, Cheviot, Serge, Mohair and Shepherd Checks. The Jackets at $5.39 instead of $6 are tailor-made, with fly front and tight-fitting back. The new Ready-to-wear Hats at $1.98 instead of $2.50 are surely a better Friday bargain than old styles at any old price. The Petticoats at 98c instead of $1.50 are of silk-like material, in stripes of all colors in combination with white. Note the accordion flounce, finished with stitched bands.

25c Hose, 19c.

Ladies' and Men's Best 25c Hose; all black and with white soles. All sizes, in light and medium weights.

$1 Corsets, 69c.

Some of the best known makes are included in this Friday offering—with the usual polite and intelligent service.

$2 Kimono, $1.69.

The gracefully long and beautiful Crepe Cloth Garment, with shirred yoke and deep border of Persian ribbon.

Hand Bags, 43c and $1.25.

Some worth $2.25.

These best English Pigskin Bags usually retail at $2.25. So do many of these Walrus and Morocco Bags. Most of them fitted with card case and purse. These are to be $1.25 for choice. The bags at 43c are not much recommended, though they are worth considerably more than the price asked.

Handkerchiefs, 6c.

Tomorrow only.

One thousand 12½c handkerchiefs are to be sold at 6c each. Only three to each purchaser, so that few or none shall be disappointed.

Neckwear, 21c.

Tomorrow only.

Regular patrons know what usually attractive Neckwear is here. 21c—and will appreciate any reduction in price.

Neckwear, 5c.

Tomorrow only.

Turnover Collars, Embroidered and Lace Stocks, Buster Brown Collars, etc. 12½c values.

Ruchings, 5c.

Tomorrow only.

Neck lengths of pretty Ruchings in all colors. None are worth less than 10c, some worth more.

Gloves, 65c.

Tomorrow only.

The "Silpon" Kid Gloves, milady's best shopping gloves made to retail at $1 per pair.

Ribbons, 17c.

Tomorrow only.

The Palais Royal's 5-inch wide Taffeta Silk Ribbons, in white, black and every best shade. Best 25c quality at 17c yard.

Jewelry, 10c.

Tomorrow only.

The new 25c Shirt Waist Sets, Hat Pins, Beauty Pins, etc. The new spring and summer styles at 10c for a day.

Sets for 3c.

Tomorrow only.

A Friday bargain to delight 5,000 husbands, fathers and brothers—3c for gold-plated button sets of five pieces.

Jewelry, 16c.

Tomorrow only.

They look worth 16c—these sparkling rhinestones, set in sterling silver as E. Pins. The jewellers ask $1 for them.

Emergency Umbrellas at 44c.

Thousands of them were purchased speculatively—but the inauguration came without rain, and the Palais Royal now makes a quick loss. 44c for $1 Umbrellas, Ladies' and Men's. Dealers are interested. 10,000 to be distributed.

$15 Rain Coats, $8.08.

$5 Mackintoshes, $3.44.

Nothing venture, nothing gain. If the rain had caught our visitors' earlier none of these 1,311 Rain Coats and Mackintoshes would be here. They shall not stay. Ladies' $15 Rain Coats at $8.08 and Misses' at $6.44; Ladies' $5 Mackintoshes at $3.44 and Misses' at $2.88.

$1.50 Umbrellas, 99c.

$3 Umbrellas, $1.88.

With the usual $1 Umbrellas at 44c an immense business is certain to be attracted here. Let's make good the loss on these "Emergency Umbrellas." No sooner said than done—the "buyer" hurried to the wholesale market and scooped in these Silk Umbrellas, which can be sold at a profit and yet be away below actual values—$1.50 kind for 99c and $3 kind for $1.88.

Housekeepers' List of Friday Bargains.

3½c.—Babbitt's, Oleine, Ivory, Gold Dust—3½c.

Tomorrow's additional Friday Bargains include Decorated Chamber Sets at only 85c—full-size pitcher, basin, covered chamber and soap dish for only 85c. The following are equally wonderful values:

50c Oval Wash-Bowls, heavy tin, with cover.	39c	25c Oval Clothes Baskets, extra strong.	19c	$1.50 Reading Lamps, nickel, complete with Royal burner, dome, shade and chimney.	98c
$1 Food Choppers, warranted best make.	59c	25c a yard Table Oilcloth, all colors.	15c	10c Enamel Tea and Coffee Pots, 1 quart.	15c
60c Nickel Alarm Clocks, warranted one year.	49c	2c Crystal Glass Table Tumblers.	1c	25c Enamel Dishpans, 12 quarts.	19c

Genuine Swiss Clocks Like Picture, 39c.

For sale in Jewelry Department, with the following reliable Silverware, at lowest prices on record:

Six Teaspoons, 12c.

Six Dinner Forks, 24c.

Six Tablespoons, 24c.

Gravy Ladles, each, 10c.

Palais Royal, G & 11th.

OUTCAST FROM HIS TRIBE.

Old Indian Shunned Because Buried for Dead, He Recovered.

From the Arkansas City Traveler.

During the coldest night of the winter John Stink, a full-blooded Osage, was induced to sleep in the office of the Capital Hotel. It is perhaps the first time he has spent a night under the roof of a hotel or dwelling house for many years. It is certain that it is the first time, despite the exceeding cold. This Indian is a peculiar character, and therefore the reason for his living out of doors. As an Osage he is possessed of considerable wealth, and yet he is the poorest person in the world. He is nearly fifty years old, and has no relatives.

He is an outcast from his tribe. He is supposed by his tribesmen to be possessed of an evil spirit, and for this every Indian shuns him as a viper. This antipathy has existed for years, and as the story goes, has arisen from a burial of John for dead and his coming back to life again.

and he was able to wiggle out from among the stones, and eventually recovered. Since that time no Indian will have anything to do with him. He beats about the country surrounding Pawhuska, camping under nooks about town when he is here, but refusing always to sleep under a roof. The night when he was induced to sleep in the hotel office was bitter cold. The old Indian had wandered about until he was almost frozen, when some white men almost forced him to go into the hotel to stay.

The night before he had slept out of doors under a big tree. He had a big fire and only a little clothing. He seems able to endure a wonderful amount of exposure. The old Indian seems to have no aim in life, no hope, no pleasure. He is simply existing until the end with the stoicism of his race.

The Dislikes of Animals.

From the Philadelphia Bulletin.

Smoking a clay pipe, the circus actor sat in the winter training quarters. Under his supervision a thin boy was learning to ride erect on a quiet horse with a broad, flat back.

"In some towns they won't let us show," said the man, "unless we have no camels with us. Camels are a serious drawback to shows. Horses are so much afraid of them that lots of towns won't let a camel enter their gates."

"A horse won't go near a piece of ground a camel has stood on. The very smell of a camel in the air will make a horse tremble and sweat. And this fear isn't only found occasionally in a horse here and there. It is found in every horse all over the world. Queer, isn't it? I often wonder why it is."

Cattle hate dogs in the same way, and cats hate dogs so, too. Here, though, we can account for the hatred. Dogs in primitive times fed on cattle, no doubt, and even today, here and there, they kill and feed on them.

AT THE WHITE HOUSE

Controller Tracewell to Remain in Office.

SOLICITOR PENFIELD

A NUMBER OF LABOR REPRESENTATIVES CALL.

Indian Chiefs Shake Hands With the Great White Father—A Femonat for District Attorney.

Robert J. Tracewell, controller of the treasury for nearly eight years, will hold that position another four years. That has been decided upon by the President, who has had the matter under consideration. It is understood that Senator Hemenway made a personal request, that Mr. Tracewell be retained, and that the President cordially gave his promise. There has for many years been a warm friendship between Mr. Hemenway and Mr. Tracewell. They are from the same district in Indiana, and Mr. Tracewell has aided in promoting the political fortunes and ambitions of his friend.

There has been much doubt whether Mr. Tracewell would stay where he is. The President's ideas on eight years being long enough for most federal appointees operated against the controller. At the same time his record has been a good one. The only charge made against him is that he was lax in ferreting out and withholding some of the payments in connection with some of the post office frauds.

For a long time Mr. Tracewell was under serious fire in connection with the examinations by himself and his experts of the accounts of various officials of the Post Office Department, but his friends succeeded in convincing the President that he had acted with wisdom and integrity, and that he was not a party to any scheme, political or otherwise, to shield any person, high or low, from punishment. The President took the case up with Secretary Shaw and others, and he found in all of them staunch friends of both the personal and official honor and integrity of the controller. The representations at the time were so strong that he did not take any action hostile to Mr. Tracewell.

Penfield Will Probably Stay.

Another Indiana man whose tenure of office has been in doubt is William L. Penfield, solicitor of the State Department and recent candidate for governor of Indiana. It is understood that he, too, will not be disturbed, at least not for some time to come. He has influential friends who have talked over his case with the President, and they have found that there is nothing against him at the State Department or the White House.

The President's reception of a large number of visitors today included the officers of the Roosevelt Republican Club of St. Paul. The club, which was organized when President Roosevelt was governor of New York, came here to attend the inauguration, and its members marched to the White House in their uniforms and headed by their band.

President Approves Mediation.

Representative Dawes of Ohio, a brother of Charles G. Dawes, former controller of the currency, and William G. Edens of Illinois, present to the President about the best-looking body of labor representatives in the White House in many months. They included Frank Buchanan, head of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, the man who put Sam Parks out of the organization; Robert A. McKee, general secretary of the International Union of Steam Engineers, Peoria, Ill.; William J. Spencer of Dayton, general secretary of the Structural Building Trades Alliance; William D. Huber of Indianapolis, general president of the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America; C. P. Hughes of De Soto, Mo., representing the Brotherhood of Trainmen; F. J. McNulty, grand president of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers; James G. Hannan of Chicago, business agent of the housing and portable engineers; and J. E. Bruner of Cincinnati, president of the International Union of Steam Engineers.

These representatives of important labor bodies have been holding a meeting to bring about a better understanding between the building trades and master builders and to assure capitalists wishing to invest in buildings that they can depend upon the labor men engaged to carry out their contracts. It was Mr. Buchanan who succeeded in stating, in overturning Sam Parks and his element in the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, that the head of labor leaders opposed to strikes and the hold-up of master builders. He is trying to make labor and master builders a power for good to themselves and the country.

The President complimented the men upon their efforts to build up and strengthen their organizations along lines that could not be objected to, and had a friendly talk. The men told him that most of them were democrats, but that they had voted for him and worked for him and intended to aid him in his policies in the future whenever it was possible to do so.

The President said he heartily approved of the boards of mediation of the seven national bodies that make up the National Labor Relations Board. He stated that he believed that mediation before was better than arbitration after a strike.

William G. Edens is the chairman of the legislative board of the Brotherhood of Trainmen and is regarded as one of the best men in the country. There was a strong demand for him from sources for fourth assistant postmaster general, but it is stated that Postmaster General Corbly has promised the place elsewhere.

Visit of Indian Chiefs.

The five famous Indian chiefs who rode in the inaugural parade had the pleasure today of shaking hands with the "Great White Father." They were accompanied to the White House by Commissioner Leupp of the Indian office, who took particular pains to see that they were not bothered with grease or paint or bedecked with feathers and ugly looking fighting material. They were in sober-looking and dignified dress, and the smallest of them, the famous old fighter and cut-throat of the Apaches, Hollow Horn Bear, of the Sioux; Quamby Parker, the head of the Comanches; American Horse, of the Sioux, and Little Plume of the Blackfeet.

Commissioner Leupp explained that the sixteen Yankton Sioux who had tried to see the President yesterday had been warned by Mr. Leupp himself had been warned that they came here that they would not be officially received. Dan Zelig, the interpreter of the band, wrote, asking to be given a place in the inaugural parade, and saying that the President had been informed that it was not the wish of the Indian office that he should come, and saying that the President had been informed that it was not the wish of the Indian office that he should come, and saying that the President had been informed that it was not the wish of the Indian office that he should come.

Democrat for District Attorney.

There is widespread surprise among Georgia people at the announcement that the President has offered the position of district attorney of the northern district of Georgia to ex-representative Carter Tate, democrat, and that Mr. Tate has accepted the position. Mr. Tate has just retired from the House after twelve years there. He was unexpectedly beaten in the last primaries by Mr. Bell. As a member of the naval affairs committee of the House he supported the President's ideas of an enlarged navy.

Bon Marche

Controller Tracewell to Remain in Office.

SOLICITOR PENFIELD

A NUMBER OF LABOR REPRESENTATIVES CALL.

Indian Chiefs Shake Hands With the Great White Father—A Femonat for District Attorney.

Robert J. Tracewell, controller of the treasury for nearly eight years, will hold that position another four years. That has been decided upon by the President, who has had the matter under consideration. It is understood that Senator Hemenway made a personal request, that Mr. Tracewell be retained, and that the President cordially gave his promise. There has for many years been a warm friendship between Mr. Hemenway and Mr. Tracewell. They are from the same district in Indiana, and Mr. Tracewell has aided in promoting the political fortunes and ambitions of his friend.

There has been much doubt whether Mr. Tracewell would stay where he is. The President's ideas on eight years being long enough for most federal appointees operated against the controller. At the same time his record has been a good one. The only charge made against him is that he was lax in ferreting out and withholding some of the payments in connection with some of the post office frauds.

For a long time Mr. Tracewell was under serious fire in connection with the examinations by himself and his experts of the accounts of various officials of the Post Office Department, but his friends succeeded in convincing the President that he had acted with wisdom and integrity, and that he was not a party to any scheme, political or otherwise, to shield any person, high or low, from punishment. The President took the case up with Secretary Shaw and others, and he found in all of them staunch friends of both the personal and official honor and integrity of the controller. The representations at the time were so strong that he did not take any action hostile to Mr. Tracewell.

Penfield Will Probably Stay.

Another Indiana man whose tenure of office has been in doubt is William L. Penfield, solicitor of the State Department and recent candidate for governor of Indiana. It is understood that he, too, will not be disturbed, at least not for some time to come. He has influential friends who have talked over his case with the President, and they have found that there is nothing against him at the State Department or the White House.

The President's reception of a large number of visitors today included the officers of the Roosevelt Republican Club of St. Paul. The club, which was organized when President Roosevelt was governor of New York, came here to attend the inauguration, and its members marched to the White House in their uniforms and headed by their band.

President Approves Mediation.

Representative Dawes of Ohio, a brother of Charles G. Dawes, former controller of the currency, and William G. Edens of Illinois, present to the President about the best-looking body of labor representatives in the White House in many months. They included Frank Buchanan, head of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, the man who put Sam Parks out of the organization; Robert A. McKee, general secretary of the International Union of Steam Engineers, Peoria, Ill.; William J. Spencer of Dayton, general secretary of the Structural Building Trades Alliance; William D. Huber of Indianapolis, general president of the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America; C. P. Hughes of De Soto, Mo., representing the Brotherhood of Trainmen; F. J. McNulty, grand president of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers; James G. Hannan of Chicago, business agent of the housing and portable engineers; and J. E. Bruner of Cincinnati, president of the International Union of Steam Engineers.

These representatives of important labor bodies have been holding a meeting to bring about a better understanding between the building trades and master builders and to assure capitalists wishing to invest in buildings that they can depend upon the labor men engaged to carry out their contracts. It was Mr. Buchanan who succeeded in stating, in overturning Sam Parks and his element in the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, that the head of labor leaders opposed to strikes and the hold-up of master builders. He is trying to make labor and master builders a power for good to themselves and the country.

The President complimented the men upon their efforts to build up and strengthen their organizations along lines that could not be objected to, and had a friendly talk. The men told him that most of them were democrats, but that they had voted for him and worked for him and intended to aid him in his policies in the future whenever it was possible to do so.

The President said he heartily approved of the boards of mediation of the seven national bodies that make up the National Labor Relations Board. He stated that he believed that mediation before was better than arbitration after a strike.

William G. Edens is the chairman of the legislative board of the Brotherhood of Trainmen and is regarded as one of the best men in the country. There was a strong demand for him from sources for fourth assistant postmaster general, but it is stated that Postmaster General Corbly has promised the place elsewhere.

Visit of Indian Chiefs.

The five famous Indian chiefs who rode in the inaugural parade had the pleasure today of shaking hands with the "Great White Father." They were accompanied to the White House by Commissioner Leupp of the Indian office, who took particular pains to see that they were not bothered with grease or paint or bedecked with feathers and ugly looking fighting material. They were in sober-looking and dignified dress, and the smallest of them, the famous old fighter and cut-throat of the Apaches, Hollow Horn Bear, of the Sioux; Quamby Parker, the head of the Comanches; American Horse, of the Sioux, and Little Plume of the Blackfeet.

Commissioner Leupp explained that the sixteen Yankton Sioux who had tried to see the President yesterday had been warned by Mr. Leupp himself had been warned that they came here that they would not be officially received. Dan Zelig, the interpreter of the band, wrote, asking to be given a place in the inaugural parade, and saying that the President had been informed that it was not the wish of the Indian office that he should come, and saying that the President had been informed that it was not the wish of the Indian office that he should come, and saying that the President had been informed that it was not the wish of the Indian office that he should come.

Democrat for District Attorney.

There is widespread surprise among Georgia people at the announcement that the President has offered the position of district attorney of the northern district of Georgia to ex-representative Carter Tate, democrat, and that Mr. Tate has accepted the position. Mr. Tate has just retired from the House after twelve years there. He was unexpectedly beaten in the last primaries by Mr. Bell. As a member of the naval affairs committee of the House he supported the President's ideas of an enlarged navy.

Bon Marche

Controller Tracewell to Remain in Office.

SOLICITOR PENFIELD

A NUMBER OF LABOR REPRESENTATIVES CALL.

Indian Chiefs Shake Hands With the Great White Father—A Femonat for District Attorney.

Robert J. Tracewell, controller of the treasury for nearly eight years, will hold that position another four years. That has been decided upon by the President, who has had the matter under consideration. It is understood that Senator Hemenway made a personal request, that Mr. Tracewell be retained, and that the President cordially gave his promise. There has for many years been a warm friendship between Mr. Hemenway and Mr. Tracewell. They are from the same district in Indiana, and Mr. Tracewell has aided in promoting the political fortunes and ambitions of his friend.

There has been much doubt whether Mr. Tracewell would stay where he is. The President's ideas on eight years being long enough for most federal appointees operated against the controller. At the same time his record has been a good one. The only charge made against him is that he was lax in ferreting out and withholding some of the payments in connection with some of the post office frauds.

For a long time Mr. Tracewell was under serious fire in connection with the examinations by himself and his experts of the accounts of various officials of the Post Office Department, but his friends succeeded in convincing the President that he had acted with wisdom and integrity, and that he was not a party to any scheme, political or otherwise, to shield any person, high or low, from punishment. The President took the case up with Secretary Shaw and others, and he found in all of them staunch friends of both the personal and official honor and integrity of the controller. The representations at the time were so strong that he did not take any action hostile to Mr. Tracewell.

Penfield Will Probably Stay.

Another Indiana man whose tenure of office has been in doubt is William L. Penfield, solicitor of the State Department and recent candidate for governor of Indiana. It is understood that he, too, will not be disturbed, at least not for some time to come. He has influential friends who have talked over his case with the President, and they have found that there is nothing against him at the State Department or the White House.

The President's reception of a large number of visitors today included the officers of the Roosevelt Republican Club of St. Paul. The club, which was organized when President Roosevelt was governor of New York, came here to attend the inauguration, and its members marched to the White House in their uniforms and headed by their band.

President Approves Mediation.

Representative Dawes of Ohio, a brother of Charles G. Dawes, former controller of the currency, and William G. Edens of Illinois, present to the President about the best-looking body of labor representatives in the White House in many months. They included Frank Buchanan, head of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, the man who put Sam Parks out of the organization; Robert A. McKee, general secretary of the International Union of Steam Engineers, Peoria, Ill.; William J. Spencer of Dayton, general secretary of the Structural Building Trades Alliance; William D. Huber of Indianapolis, general president of the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America; C. P. Hughes of De Soto, Mo., representing the Brotherhood of Trainmen; F. J. McNulty, grand president of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers; James G. Hannan of Chicago, business agent of the housing and portable engineers; and J. E. Bruner of Cincinnati, president of the International Union of Steam Engineers.

These representatives of important labor bodies have been holding a meeting to bring about a better understanding between the building trades and master builders and to assure capitalists wishing to invest in buildings that they can depend upon the labor men engaged to carry out their contracts. It was Mr. Buchanan who succeeded in stating, in overturning Sam Parks and his element in the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, that the head of labor leaders opposed to strikes and the hold-up of master builders. He is trying to make labor and master builders a power for good to themselves and the country.

The President complimented the men upon their efforts to build up and strengthen their organizations along lines that could not be objected to, and had a friendly talk. The men told him that most of them were democrats, but that they had voted for him and worked for him and intended to aid him in his policies in the future whenever it was possible to do so.

The President said he heartily approved of the boards of mediation of the seven national bodies that make up the National Labor Relations Board. He stated that he believed that mediation before was better than arbitration after a strike.

William G. Edens is the chairman of the legislative board of the Brotherhood of Trainmen and is regarded as one of the best men in the country. There was a strong demand for him from sources for fourth assistant postmaster general, but it is stated that Postmaster General Corbly has promised the place elsewhere.

Visit of Indian Chiefs.

The five famous Indian chiefs who rode in the inaugural parade had the pleasure today of shaking hands with the "Great White Father." They were accompanied to the White House by Commissioner Leupp of the Indian office, who took particular pains to see that they were not bothered with grease or paint or bedecked with feathers and ugly looking fighting material. They were in sober-looking and dignified dress, and the smallest of them, the famous old fighter and cut-throat of the Apaches, Hollow Horn Bear, of the Sioux; Quamby Parker, the head of the Comanches; American Horse, of the Sioux, and Little Plume of the Blackfeet.

Commissioner Leupp explained that the sixteen Yankton Sioux who had tried to see the President yesterday had been warned by Mr. Leupp himself had been warned that they came here that they would not be officially received. Dan Zelig, the interpreter of the band, wrote, asking to be given a place in the inaugural parade, and saying that the President had been informed that it was not the wish of the Indian office that he should come, and saying that the President had been informed that it was not the wish of the Indian office that he should come, and saying that the President had been informed that it was not the wish of the Indian office that he should come.

Democrat for District Attorney.

There is widespread surprise among Georgia people at the announcement that the President has offered the position of district attorney of the northern district of Georgia to ex-representative Carter Tate, democrat, and that Mr. Tate has accepted the position. Mr. Tate has just retired from the House after twelve years there. He was unexpectedly beaten in the last primaries by Mr. Bell. As a member of the naval affairs committee of the House he supported the President's ideas of an enlarged navy.

Bon Marche

Controller Tracewell to Remain in Office.

SOLICITOR PENFIELD

A NUMBER OF LABOR REPRESENTATIVES CALL.

Indian Chiefs Shake Hands With the Great White Father—A Femonat for District Attorney.

Robert J. Tracewell, controller of the treasury for nearly eight years, will hold that position another four years. That has been decided upon by the President, who has had the matter under consideration. It is understood that Senator Hemenway made a personal request, that Mr. Tracewell be retained, and that the President cordially gave his promise. There has for many years been a warm friendship between Mr. Hemenway and Mr. Tracewell. They are from the same district in Indiana, and Mr. Tracewell has aided in promoting the political fortunes and ambitions of his friend.

There has been much doubt whether Mr. Tracewell would stay where he is. The President's ideas on eight years being long enough for most federal appointees operated against the controller. At the same time his record has been a good one. The only charge made against him is that he was lax in ferreting out and withholding some of the payments in connection with some of the post office frauds.

For a long time Mr. Tracewell was under serious fire in connection with the examinations by himself and his experts of the accounts of various officials of the Post Office Department, but his friends succeeded in convincing the President that he had acted with wisdom and integrity, and that he was not a party to any scheme, political or otherwise, to shield any person, high or low, from punishment. The President took the case up with Secretary Shaw and others, and he found in all of them staunch friends of both the personal and official honor and integrity of the controller. The representations at the time were so strong that he did not take any action hostile to Mr. Tracewell.

Penfield Will Probably Stay.

Another Indiana man whose tenure of office has been in doubt is William L. Penfield, solicitor of the State Department and recent candidate for governor of Indiana. It is understood that he, too, will not be disturbed, at least not for some time to come. He has influential friends who have talked over his case with the President, and they have found that there is nothing against him at the State Department or the White House.

The President's reception of a large number of visitors today included the officers of the Roosevelt Republican Club of St. Paul. The club, which was organized when President Roosevelt was governor of New York, came here to attend the inauguration, and its members marched to the White House in their uniforms and headed by their band.

President Approves